Chapter 1 THE BEGINNINGS OF GOVERNMENT IN THE UNITED STATES

The story of American government reaches deep into the past. Our system of government did not suddenly spring into being as if the wind of some political revolution's hand. Nor was it pulled out of thin air by the

Our English Heritage. The French, Spanish, Dutch, Scandinavian and other Europeans settled in parts of what was to become the United States. But it was the English who came in the largest numbers. And it was the English who came to control the thirteen colonies that stretched for 1,300 miles along the Atlantic seaboard.

These early pioneers who cleared the wilderness and fought off the Indians had to look out for themselves. But their future lay in the New World. So they came here to search for greater freedom.

Founding Fathers of Philadelphia in the summer of 1787. Madison, in particular, developed through long experience. Lincoln, through blood and tears. We shall meet them in the last part of this beginning.

The Colonial Period

When and how English people came to settle in North America was a long and complicated story. There were many reasons why they came. Some were economic, some were religious, some were political. But all of them were well known to the English people before the first Englishman ever landed in America.

Chapter 1. Government in the Colonies. The first English colony was Jamestown, Virginia, in 1607. It was founded by a group of men who had been sent to America by the Virginia Company. They were to establish a permanent settlement and to develop a profitable trade with England.

SETTLERS AT WORK

Early Americans had to live together in harmony, or they would not survive. This was called "government in order to live," the beginning of our government today.

of which are to be found today: equity, honesty, duty, courage, and justice in the face of adversity. And all of these were well known to the English people before the first Englishman ever landed in America.

that each man has certain rights that government cannot injure or take away. These great principles of freedom were proclaimed in such historic English documents as the Magna Carta in 1215, the Petition of Right in 1628, and the Bill of Rights and the Act of Toleration of 1689.

Quadlander Crabbe declared that one of his twins, Faith and Hope, will marry Terence Flairty, a son of an old War buddy. Unknown Terence, will arrive any moment to choose his bride. The twins, though naturally beautiful, make themselves ugly as possible in hopes that Terence will refuse to propose. Meanwhile the twins' boy friends, Monty and Reggie Van Twiller, breeze in for the evening. Inspired by the same idea as the twins, Terence disguises himself in an ugly red wig and brings along Jack Quinlan, a pal, to decoy the girls away from Terence.

The fathers, seeing each others children in disguise, turn the tables around and declare their children will never marry. When removing the make-up Terence and Faith fall in love; and Hope and Jack follow suit. How the young finally straighten out their affairs makes the fitting climax to a whirlwind farce.
